New York, April 1, 2021 – Prince Street Gallery’s April online show will feature the Gallery artists, each following their own path toward abstraction or realism.

Emerging from a year of isolation and even desolation, member artists bring with them hope, new purpose, a renewed energy and much more. How does each individual re-enter the world, now seen in person and not always behind a mask?

How does their art express their feelings of hope and release, of re-creation or new creation? Each work, whether painting or print, collage or drawing, is a personal and unique expression of our new shared reality.

Scroll through the online Gallery and experience the diverse selection of work by Prince Street artists.
