Sacchi Shimoda      The last conversation-2019

Prince Street Gallery is pleased to announce Sacchi Shimoda, The last conversation-2019, a solo exhibition at Prince Street Gallery from July 9 through July 27, 2019 . The last conversation-2019 commemorates the 500 years anniversary of Leonardo da Vinci's death in 1519.

The last conversation-2019 represents many years of work and study of Leonardo's painting, "The Last Supper". Each painting in a series of 5 works included in the current exhibition represents a present view of the past and unique interpretations of significant elements of the paintings done 500 years ago. Along with the exhibition is a statement by the artist for each work.

In addition to large oils on canvas the show will include many small origami sculptures which are also unique in that they explore subjects such as "The Annunciation" rather than traditional origami subjects.

Sacchi Shimoda has lived in Brooklyn for 20 years. She studied graphic design at Parsons School of Design and graduated from NYCC, Brooklyn. For more information, please contact the gallery during business hours 11-6 Tuesday- Saturday ( closed July 4)
